

LAMP BLAST KILLS N. Y. SOCIETY LEADER

Mrs. Philip Rhinelander, Wife of Millionaire Clubman, Dies Following Explosion.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—Funeral services are being completed today for Mrs. Adelaide Kip Rhinelander, wife of Philip Rhinelander, millionaire clubman, who died in agony at her summer home, in Tuxedo, from burns resulting from the explosion of an alcohol lamp in her boudoir.

Assisted by a maid, Mrs. Rhinelander was dressing for the afternoon. The maid left the room a moment, while Mrs. Rhinelander's hair was being styled, and, hearing an explosion, she hurried back to find her mistress in flames.

The alcohol lamp, used for heating upholstery, had burst, scattering the blazing fluid over Mrs. Rhinelander's dress, which was lit by the flames. She was badly burned, and her husband, who was in the room at the time, rushed to her aid, but she died before the physicians could reach her.

Burns Deep and Broad.
Pluckily the maid worked to extinguish the fire and finally did, with the aid of others of the household, who heard the woman's cries. But the burns were deep and broad, making recovery doubtful. The nearest physicians were called, and also Dr. Baynor, of New York, but they could not hold out any hope.

Mrs. Rhinelander had not been in good health all summer, but was not seriously ill. She had gone out very little. Her husband, Philip Rhinelander, had planned to leave today to meet their sons returning from California.

Active in Society.
Mrs. Rhinelander had been active in society, but recently her interest centered in her home and her church, St. Bartholomew's. Her family life was ideal, the envy of many society friends.

Before her marriage, Mrs. Rhinelander was Adelaide Kip, sister of William Kip, and granddaughter of former Mayor Brady. She was wealthy in her own right, and married into one of the oldest and most prominent families in New York.

Philip Rhinelander is a son of the late Mrs. William Rhinelander, founder of the New York Society for Colonial Dames. He is a cousin of former Police Commissioner Rhinelander Waldo. He is a member of the Seventh Regiment and many exclusive clubs.

KENSINGTON MAN IS STABBED BY NEGRO
Edgar D. James Victim of Assault on Four-and-a-Half Street.

Edgar D. James, twenty-four years old, of Kensington, is in the Casualty Hospital with a deep knife wound in his side and two colored men are being held for investigation at the Fourth precinct police station as a result of an argument that ended in a cutting scrape at Four-and-a-half street and Maine avenue shortly after 2 o'clock this morning.

On account of his weakened condition James was not able to make a lengthy statement, but he told the police that he was wounded by a colored man whose name he did not know. After being hurt James walked to a restaurant near Four-and-a-half street and Pennsylvania avenue, where he was seen by Policeman Guy Ross, of the Sixth precinct, who called for an ambulance. The call was answered by both the Emergency and Casualty hospitals, but the latter ambulance arrived first and took the patient.

At the hospital it was found necessary to take twenty-nine stitches to close the wound, which extended along the left side and back through the muscles of the shoulder. It was said by the doctors today that the man has a good chance to recover, provided the wound does not become infected.

Detectives at once set to work to find James' assailants, and Frank Williams and Charles Williams, colored, both of whom live at 456 Maine avenue southwest, were arrested by Patrolman Dunham, of the Fourth precinct, and Detective Stringfellow, of the Central office. They both deny knowledge of the assault on James, but are being held for investigation.

The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. Carroll T. Brown, as matron of honor, and the bridesmaids were Misses Gertrude Ligon, of Shipman, Va.; Sarah Forsythe, of Washington, D. C.; Ruth of Brooklyn, N. Y.; Helen Cooper, of Morristown, N. J.; Katherine Balderson, of Jacksonville, Pa.; and Katherine Harrington, of Morristown, N. J. Carl Ligon, of Baltimore, was best man.

Agricultural Bureau Won't Relax Oat Rules
Despite alleged widespread damage to the oat crop by unfavorable weather conditions, the Department of Agriculture has refused to waive its regulations against the bleaching of oats or sale of oats to which water has been added.

Request for waiver and relaxation was made by the National Grain Dealers' Association. It was denied after the grain exchanges had closed for the week.

REPORT ON POLICE INQUIRY COMPLETE

Any Startling Graft Disclosures by Attorney Unlikely, Grand Jury Action Indicates.

After an investigation covering almost two months concerning the alleged acceptance of "gratuity" by members of the police department, Assistant District Attorney C. McComas Hawken has practically completed his report and will deliver it to United States District Attorney John E. Larkey tomorrow or Tuesday.

Mr. Hawken would give no indication of what the report would contain, but it is not believed anything startling will be disclosed, as otherwise the grand jury would not have adjourned for two weeks last Thursday without taking further action.

Two men are now under indictment on charges of disloyalty made in the course of the investigation—Raymond O. Kleindienst, a former detective, and Warren E. Grimes, who was suspended from the force at the time of his indictment.

Mother in Hospital, Wagon Hits Child

Little Charles Edwards Hovers Between Life and Death At the Emergency.

While his mother lies in the Municipal Hospital waging a losing fight against tuberculosis, Charles Edwards, five years old, hovers between life and death at the Emergency Hospital, having been run down by a coal wagon while at play in an alley near the Gospel Mission late yesterday afternoon.

Since his mother was taken to the hospital a week ago he had been living with Supt. and Mrs. H. W. Kline at the mission and had become a great favorite there. On account of the critical condition of his mother she has not been told that her boy is injured.

The hospital authorities said today that he had rested well and that he stood a better chance of recovery today than he did yesterday evening.

North Point Fight 101 Years Ago

Today Is Anniversary of Battle With British Forces, Clash Also at Fort McHenry.

One hundred and one years ago today the British land and sea forces that had captured and burned the National Capital made their memorable attack upon North Point and Fort McHenry, with Baltimore as an objective. It was during the attack that Francis Scott Key found his place among the immortal by writing "The Star-Spangled Banner."

The British forces, flushed with their success at the Capital, made a combined attack, the forces under General Ross, seasoned veterans of the Crimean campaign, landing at North Point. American soldiers turned them back, and the disembarked while Fort McHenry held out against the combined British squadrons of Admirals Cochrane and Cockburn.

In the days of the old defenders men who stood off the British—Washington was always the scene of a celebration of the American victory on this day, and the anniversary has always been set aside for celebration in Baltimore. The Maryland city, however, had no unusual exercises this year, resting upon the glories of the week's celebration that marked the one hundredth anniversary last year.

One Year Ago Today in the War

Battered by vigorous attacks, three German armies fled in disorder one year ago today, September 12. In their rout they left large quantities of artillery.

Retreat of the forces assailing Paris marked the termination of the battle of the Marne with the allies victorious. More than 80,000 men were killed and 250,000 wounded in the battle.

On their left wing the allies drove the Germans to the Aisne. In the center, too, German troops were swept back, the French and British crossing the Marne between Eperay and Vitry-le-Francois. The Teutons abandoned the region around Nancy. French troops reoccupied Lunville.

In Galicia the Austrian left wing fell back in desperate plight to the angle of the Vistula and San rivers, with the Russians in close pursuit.

Australian warships captured Herberstshoehe, capital of the German Bismarck Archipelago, and the Solomon Islands.

SOCIALISTS PLAN CITY WITH NO POOR IN IT

It's to Be Located Somewhere in Missouri, Promoters Say. Public Warehouse.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 12.—It is to have a new town, where everybody works and nobody is poor, a town without political or business bosses, yet of law and order, and what is the principal thing, happiness.

That is the plan of Kansas City Socialists, and, according to Harry Chilton, half a dozen committees are traveling over the State looking for a town site.

"The idea," Mr. Chilton said, "is to buy about 15,000 acres and divide it up into tracts to be farmed by members of the organization and their families. Each purchaser will own his land except that a certain portion of all the timber and minerals on it will belong to the community."

"We will build a public warehouse. Every man will be required to do a certain amount of work for the town. There will be hired help and no town officials. The organization is non-sectarian and non-political. While the movement was started by Socialists, we have members of all political parties."

Elks Sail Down River To Enjoy Clam Bake

The "Rhode Island Clam Bake," arranged by the Washington Lodge, B. P. O. E., is under way today.

Where the steamer St. John left her wharf this morning, there were 400 members of the order aboard, and as soon as the craft was well in mid-stream, breakfast was served.

A landing was made early at the old River View wharf, after which Chairman Fred J. Marshburn conducted the party to the Elks picnic grounds, while the Elks Band provided music.

To each member of the party was served one lobster, one-half chicken, one fish, clam chowder, soft clams, corn on the cob, white potatoes, hard clams and American salad.

Before and after the feast there were athletic events, followed by a sail down the river. The return to Washington will be made tonight.

Choked on Peas.

RELINCE, S. D., Sept. 12.—Laughter caused the death of Delliah Wyant, the ten-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Wyant, living on a homestead near Reliance. Accompanied by a couple of companions, the girl was visiting a garden and was eating peas from the pod. She was in a very merry mood, and during this, induced in a hearty peal of laughter. This caused some of the peas to lodge in the bronchial tube and she choked to death before assistance could be given her.

Lands Big Pike.

SHARON, Pa., Sept. 12.—D. J. Frantz of New Hamburg, holds the record for landing the biggest pike from the Shenango river. Yesterday he went fishing near the Bend bridge with a 10-cent pole and line. His bait had not been in the water long until he hooked a 174-pound pike. During the fight to get the fish out of the water the pole was broken.

Boat Rescues Dog Far Out in Sound

Handsome Collar Gives No Clue To Owner of Animal Which Becomes Yacht's Mascot.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—John Tyson, of Riverside, Conn., while returning from a cruise to the eastward on board his motor yacht Antares Friday afternoon, with the Indian Harbor Yacht Club's "gun crew," composed of Abbott P. Brush, Alfred Lockwood, and "Mick" Sheldon, as his guests, suddenly heard a faint barking on his port bow and, locating the sound, discovered the head of a dog that was swimming in the sound.

Signals were rung for full speed astern and the Antares was finally stopped alongside the unfortunate animal. The "gun crew" formed into a human companionway and the almost exhausted dog was helped aboard.

Receives First Aid.

She was a collie, about three years old, and wore a handsome collar, but no license tag by means of which the identity of her owner might be determined. First aid, in the form of massage, champagne, and then warm blankets, was administered, and before long the collie was in good condition.
